WRANGELL'S MINERAL HOARD

Known Placer and Quartz Deposits Rivaling Those Already Proved In Other Parts Of This Great Mining District

The Iskut country promises to be one of the best mineral districts near us. Those who have been in and examined the ore state that it is undoubtedly like the reefs at Stewart, the new camp in Portland Canal. There is plenty of ore here of various grades and some keen men are going in just as soon as the ice clears out of the streams. These men know a bit about mining and the possibilities of the Iskut and they are going to try and get the plums, which are there for the taking.

Then the placer feature will lure many. The Indians tell of some bars difficult of access where they washed out coarse gold. These bars have not been touched by white men and still contain their treasures.

Again further up the river the smaller creeks emptying into the Iskut have many claims for investigation. Some washings from a shovel were brought out that indicated such values that if they hold out will enable many to successfully open Pandora's box of riches.

On the Stikine, within our own borders, there are places where one can make small wages on the bars, and if the branches were thoroughly prospected there is a probability of splendidly paying hydraulic works.

Then again there remains in the hills places where here and there in the small rills placer gold has been found, this was in hunting for the "Lost Rocker" and because there was only a few coarse bits found the prospector went on and on to find riches by the bucketsfull—and were disappointed.

The search for placer and quartz is one of peculiar hardship in this section and while many will come—many fail—but at the same time the prizes will fall to the expert or novice as they happen to uncover nature's storehouse.

In hunting for the placer one should always be on the outlook for quartz or for any thing out of the ordinary.

This is a new country and new combinations will no doubt be found. So the prospector should try everything for his chance may come in just such an odd looking formation or rock differing from those he has been familiar with in other places.

As time goes on the news of their finds or known deposits will be given—not with the wish to produce a rush, but so that those who wish to get their share of earth's riches can do so with the least amount of danger and privations.

If you don't like good hard, honest toil, if you are not robust and strong, if you cannot bear disappointment—do not come or go to any mining camp.

Here you can mine when you like and if you have present failure a stake can be made from trapping, fishing or logging. In fact there is no other place where well directed effort brings in so much money—where one can get ahead—where one can work if one chooses or be a spender knowing he can easily get more money by a little effort.

If you like the sea better than the land you have only to secure a boat of some sort, some gear ranging from lines, hook or spoon to nets and in a short time too you can be independent. There are thousands of fish waiting to be caught and a market for all one can secure, so it rests with you how much or how little you make.

You can see lots of fisherman—men who knew nothing about fishing, they had a skiff for a year or so, then a larger boat with a gasoline engine and then a fine launch and if they would save their money they would be on easy street. The money made in fishing in the waters of Alaska is simply wonderful. The wealth is there simply awaiting some one to take it out in the shape of fresh fish—the canned product, or salted or smoked in in the many ways that people demand.

There are untold multitudes of crabs and not a single cannery in Alaska putting up the article. And then we have such luscious shrimps, just put them up in tins and they will sell themselves. And then the flavor of the sea food is so delicious.

A politician lately said that Alaska was over advertised—with all the wild stories of amassing quick wealth in this great storehouse of riches, the half, nay the quarter, has not been told. There is room for ten times our present number to be engaged in developing the sources of wealth and then there will be room for ten times more again before we can have the fight for existence and business that there is going on in the older states.

Capt. Stackpole of the good ship Wabash has been wrestling with a bad attack of tonsillitis, but the latest returns are that the Irish, as usual, are coming out on top.

"Dad" Smith Expected Shortly

Frank Smith is expected north shortly to take charge of the local shingle mill for the coming season or so he writes to local people. He says that he will operate the mill to its fullest capacity being satisfied that there is enough buildings contemplated in the district to consume all his product. It is expected that he will make several changes and improvements before starting the wheels turning.

Ole Johnson, after a pleasant stay at Belle Island Hot Springs, returned on the Humboldt.

Changes in the Alaska customs service which will save the government $3500 annually, have been made at the suggestion of Collector of Customs John R. Willis.

Married At Tacoma

Charles Benjamin and Miss Lilly McCulley were united in matrimony at Tacoma, Monday, February 27, and arrived in town Friday on the Humboldt, and are keeping house in the Patenaude building. Mrs. Benjamin comes from Charley's old home town in Minnesota. The Sentinel extends the best wishes of the community to them both.

Do not neglect a cough—it is the source of more serious diseases—it is not only inconvenient—it is dangerous. Nyal's Cherry Cough Syrup will remove all possibility of further infection. Shurick Drug Co., local agents.

Haines merchants are discussing the advisability of raising funds to employ competent prospectors to scour the neighboring hills.

Will Improve Shakan Cannery

Word comes from the south that the P. J. Gorman Co., operating the Shakan Cannery, are contemplating many changes and improvements in their cannery at that place. Among them are the installation of another line of machinery including another "Iron Chink" and soldering machine. This will practically double the capacity of the concern, which heretofore has been about 40,000 cases per season. There has been no shortage of fish on the West Coast, and the management expect to experience no difficulty in getting the necessary raw material for the pack. The natives at Shakan are delighted with the prospect as it will mean considerable more cash every year.

Local Mill Gets Busy

The old familiar tones of the local sawmill whistle disturbed late sleepers Tuesday morning, when the mill opened up for the season of 1911. The plant was thoroughly over-hauled during the closed period, and will no doubt make a good run this year. At present the main part of the work is on the timbers for the new dock.

Re-Commencing Operations

The piles for the new wharf have been towed over from the Narrows, the pile driver scow is just about ready for building the frames, and then the work will be on in full swing. The fisherman of this district are intently watching operations, and there is every probability that the cold storage to be operated in connection with the wharf will bring a great deal of this class of business to Wrangell, which now goes to Scow Bay and Petersburg.

Baby Loses Its Finger

Baby Engstrom had the misfortune to get mixed up with an axe, Wednesday morning, and as the result is minus a finger. Andrew was splitting wood and the baby trying to help him, put his hand on the block as the axe was descending, with the above result.

While doctoring his little dog, which had been badly chewed up by the three up-river dogs now in town, Sam Kincaid received a nasty bite on the finger, Tuesday. The wound is giving him considerable pain.

Lewis Larsen, who arrived at Cordova from Seattle on Feb. 12th, committed suicide the next morning by blowing off part of his head with a rifle.

Webster's NEW INTERNATIONAL Dictionary, (G. & C. Merriam Co., Springfield, Mass.) surpasses the old International as much as that book exceeded its predecessor. On the old foundation a new superstructure has been built. The reconstruction has been carried on through many years by a large force of trained workers, under the supervision of Dr. W. T. Harris, former United States Commissioner of Education, and reinforced by many eminent specialists. The definitions have been rearranged and amplified. The number of terms defined has been more than doubled. The etymology, synonyms, pronunciation, have received unsparing scholarly labor. The language of English literature for over seven centuries, the terminology of the arts and sciences, and the every-day speech of street, shop, and household, are presented with fullness and clearness. In size of vocabulary, in richness of general information, and in convenience of consultation, the book sets a new mark in lexicography.

If he should come tonight--- THE THIEF

THE thief comes prepared—prepared to take your valuables. Carries the necessary tools. Is expert in their use. One of his tools is the revolver. In plain words, he is prepared to take your life. His deadly intent and expertness makes up for his revolver's awkwardness and slowness.

You have neither expertness or deadly intent. You cannot afford to stake everything upon a wrist-straining, trigger-flinching, slow-as-molasses firearm. Settle this matter to-day for the sake of your family. Get the Savage automatic. The only gun that points straight, shoots true, fires fast, without practice. It is the only gun you can shoot straight any time you pick it up. Ten shots, one to a trigger pull. Reloads a fresh magazine of ten shots in a flash. Our free book "The Tenderfoot's Turn," by Bat Masterson tells why you point the Savage instinctively true. It requires but a few minutes each day to fortify the system against such dread diseases as Rheumatism or Bright's Disease.

Impaired action of the kidneys is the forerunner of these two diseases, and if prompt and effective treatment is not begun it often means either of the two.

The time required to take a few doses of

and the cost of a bottle of it are a minor consideration when compared with the misery and expense associated with chronic kidney troubles, Rheumatism and Bright's Disease.
